To Whom It May Concern,

I recommend utilizing the services of JHooker Construction without hesitation and with the greatest of confidence.

Our Building Renovation Committee asked a lot from the site managers and the sub contractors. Always, they responded quickly and kindly. JHooker was patient to explain processes to our people with absolutely no experience. Likewise, they were receptive to the information our church member-architects/engineers/construction labor members offered.

Our project was challenging, including renovating structures that were originally built in about four different decades. We had environmental issues to address, long-standing structural concerns that had to be explored to resolve, not to mention that we continued to occupy various parts of the space during construction. They were always accommodating when we needed to adjust their timeline because of a church event. They left the site in safe and as clean as possible condition each day.

Expertise and skill and workmanship are of course vital. However, it is the integrity and character of John Hooker and his staff that are most valuable and rare.

Sincerely,

Donna L. Watts
